ELMS COLLEGE

OUR MISSION

College of Our Lady of the Elms, a Catholic college, educates a diverse group of students in a supportive, vibrant learning community. Combining a liberal arts education with professional studies, Elms College empowers students to effect positive change in the community and in the world.

Affirming the founding tradition of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Elms College challenges students to embrace change without compromising principle, to respond creatively to the demands of their chosen careers, and to advocate for people in need.

Elms College is a community rooted in faith, educated in mind, compassionate in heart, and responsive to civic and social obligations.

The origins of academic dress lie uncertainly in 13th century England, when Edward III granted a charter to the University of Oxford. A close connection between the university and the church (the chancellor was the bishop's representative) may explain why illustrations depict the members of Oxford wearing gowns resembling clerical cassocks—closed in front and reaching the ground all around. Like the more lavishly trimmed ecclesiastical vestments, costume for advanced degrees was more elaborate.

A more practical reason than religious concurrence may have prompted the adoption of long gowns. The buildings frequented by medieval scholars were cold and often damp, and so robes (particularly with hoods to protect tonsured heads) may have been worn more for warmth than fashion.

The distinctive gown, nevertheless, set students apart from fellow citizens. As late as the Civil War, students at American universities wore caps and gowns daily while in residence. Whatever the origin, academic regalia grew in diversity and splendor, with scholars displaying distinctive costumes for different occasions and achievements. The result was a bewildering variety of designs.

An intercollegiate commission met at Columbia University in 1894 to establish a standard academic costume code, and over the years it has been revised by an official committee of the American Council on Education. The committee's prescriptions, while regulating, still allow for great pageantry at formal academic events.

From the cap, gown, and hood, it is possible to distinguish the institution from which the wearer was graduated, the field of learning in which the degree was earned, and the level of the degree—bachelor, master, or doctorate.

The distinguishing feature of the black mortarboard cap, standard at most colleges and universities in the United States, is the color of the tassel—black for the holder of a bachelor's or master's degree, gold for a doctor's degree or the governing officers of educational institutions. Soft velvet tams are worn for the doctor's degree only.

The gown is normally black, and the gown's cut and trim indicate the level of the degree held. The bachelor's has long, pointed sleeves, while the master's has oblong sleeves, open at the wrist, with the front part cut in an arc. The doctor's sleeves are bell-shaped, with three bars of velvet, and the gown is trimmed with velvet down the front as well.

The hood tells the most about the wearer. The length of the hood and width of the binding vary according to degree. The hood is lined with the official colors of the college. The color of the hood's binding indicates the area of study in which the degree was granted:

Hass has, since 2021, been President of the Washington, D.C.-based Council of Independent Colleges, an organization representing more than 700 colleges across the United States, including Elms College. Before that, she was President of Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee, from 2017 to 2021, and President of Austin College in Sherman, Texas, from 2009-2017. She is considered a leader and a trailblazer in higher education and has a reputation for being a fierce advocate for liberal arts education and for small, independent colleges.

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

Johnnella E. Butler, Ed.D. '68, has had a distinguished career as a teacher, author, and higher education administrator since graduating from Elms with a bachelor of arts degree in English Literature. She is on the faculty of the Executive Leadership Academy and affiliate faculty with the Center for the Studies of Higher Education at the University of California at Berkeley. She is Professor Emerita of Comparative Women's Studies at Spelman University since 2020. She also served as Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs at Spelman from 2005-2014. She earned her master's degree in English from Johns Hopkins University in 1969 and her doctorate in Afro-American Literature and Multicultural Studies from the University of Massachusetts Amherst in 1979. She has been a tenured faculty member at Smith College and the University of Washington before Spelman. With her appointment to the Smith faculty in 1981, she became the first Black woman in the history of the college to be granted tenure.

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

Reverend John J. Unni, M. Div. for the past 20 years has been pastor at St. Cecilia Parish in Boston. He was ordained as a priest in Boston in 1992.
